GENERAL WOOD HERE TOMORROW.

Gen. Leonard Wood, one of America's most distinguished men and a personal friend of the immortal Roosevelt, will visit Lake county tomorrow as a candidate for presidential honors and we bespeak for him a hearty welcome as a national celebrity and a man.

Gen. Wood is not a stranger to the Calumet region. He was a familiar figure during the Gary strike and he thinks enough of this locality to have a reputation which no other presidential candidate on any ticket has—that of owning property in this locality which is a matter of record. Gen. Wood will speak at East Chicago, Gary and Hammond and deserves the careful attention and consideration of every voter in the five cities.

The man who will not come out and hear why or why not a presidential candidate should be nominated is a poor stick of a citizen. Gen. Wood is asking you for your vote. He is addressing large throngs over the country telling the voters why he should cast that vote for Wood for president.

Were Gen. Wood here on just a plain mission, his services to his country not only in military, but in civilian matters, would entitle him to big throngs, how much more when he is a candidate for the highest honor the country can give does he deserve a splendid reception and enthusiastic welcome.

HUMANIZING ARMY COURTS.

If enacted by congress, recommendations of the senate military committee for changes in the army court-martial system should go far toward re-establishing confidence in the democracy of our armed establishment. This confidence is imperatively needed now, when a great recruiting campaign is under way and efforts are being made to attract thousands of veterans back to the service.

Specific suggestions of the committee appeal to common sense. Death sentences must be made by a three-fourths instead of a two-thirds vote of the courts, if the program is endorsed. To avert the possibility of green officers weighted down by self-importance being intrusted with life or liberty of soldiers. It is urged the courts must have members of legal experience and be composed of officers of at least two years' experience. Defendants may have counsel, military or civilian, of their own selection. Verdicts of acquittal may not be set aside. Punishments may not be heavier than under civil procedure. These are a few of the rules which so widely commend themselves as fair that the only wonder is that the army system has denied such obvious rights.

The Ansell-Crowder dispute was one of the deplorable post-war muddles of which the people have tired. But it has been profitable by arousing the nation to the militaristic and autocratic tone of our army courts and the need for humanizing and democratizing them.

The army of a democracy should be democratic. Nothing is so subversive of either discipline or loyalty as a sense of oppression and injustice, and it has been clearly evidenced that many of our army courts during the war were stupid and archaic, if not downright unjust. While such conditions prevail the army service could command neither the enthusiasm nor the respect of many potential soldiers. That these evils are in the mind should be stimulating to recruiting as well as gratifying to the public generally.

WHEN LAKE COUNTY SAVED STATE.

The Peeler workers are assuming that their candidate will get a large bulk of the Marion county vote. They are pointing to a recent compilation of figures to show that for the last forty-four years Indiana has gone the same way politically that Marion county has gone. They reason in the following fashion from the figures presented to show that it is desirable for the republicans to have a strong candidate from Marion county, as the vote in this county might swing a close election in other parts of the state.

In 1916, Hughes, republican, carried Indiana by a plurality of 6,942 votes, of which Marion county alone contributed a plurality of 5,656. With the exception of what were regarded as four abnormal years, the state has never gone in a presidential election since 1876 for either party more than 15,541, the plurality in 1884 when the democrats won, and the plurality has been as low as 2,331 in 1888 when the republicans won.—Indianapolis News.

What about 1912, when Marion county went democratic and only by the big majority that Lake county gave Taft was the entire state prevented from going democratic? Where was Marion county that year? The fact is Indiana is no longer dependant on Marion; she looks to Lake county now.

WHEN NEIGHBORS were called into consultation on the marital relations of a New York pastor and his wife, a separation was arranged. That might have been expected.

PACIFIC COAST sugar men seem to be under the impression that they have not been getting their share, since they recently announced an increase in price of one cent a pound.

BRICKLAYERS and other artisans enforcing substantial increases of wages have better luck than poets, whose work is not really valued until they are dead.

THE HUN revolutionists started more than they were able to finish and probably more than they ever imagined.

JACK DEMPSEY may yet suffer from the tale of a woman scorned.
